

THE NEW TOM SWIFT INVENTION SERIES

Tom Swift And The Galaxy Ghosts

By Victor Appleton II

While testing a new spaceship capable of traveling between the physical layers of 3-dimensional space, Tom and Bud stumble onto an unbelievable sight: a dark hole that is tossing matter back out rather than sucking it in.

Things begin to get strange when they get a visual contact with something that all their instruments say isn't there!

The strangeness goes further when the apparition appears inside their ship, beckoning them to follow. But, follow to where? To what? Some exciting new discovery? The truth behind the backward-running black hole?

Their doom?

When Tom decides that safety must take precedence over investigation their ship breaks down one the one way Tom never planned, and for which he has no spare or way to repair.

Without warning, the black hole reverses direction and begins drawing them in. Can they get the Galactic Traveller working before it is too late?

This excerpt ©copyright 2012 by the author of this book (Victor Appleton II - pseud. of T. Edward Fox). The book author retains sole copyright to his or her contributions to this book.

This book is a work of fan fiction. It is not claimed to be part of any previously published adventures of the main characters. It has been self-published and is not intended to supplant any authored works attributed to the pseudonymous author or to claim the rights of any legitimate publishing entity.

This book is dedicated to the person who wrote the original, the other person who padded it out and made it horrible, and the man who refused to allow it to continue by re-imagining something very bad indeed. But—and you have to admit it is a stretch to do a “Tom” book that doesn't have an invention in its name—it is an interesting title. So, here's a shot at resurrecting it, in title only!